

With its richly expressive veining and luminous surface, Calacatta Viola evokes the grandeur of Italian artistry and the legacy of Renaissance architecture. More than a reproduction, this is a re-imagining of Breccia Medicea, the stone so beloved by the Medici dynasty.

Calacatta Viola

A modern interior scene featuring two orange armchairs and a dark coffee table against a wall of Calacatta Viola marble. The marble has a complex, organic pattern of white, grey, and reddish-brown veins. The text "PYRO + ECHO" is overlaid in large, white, sans-serif capital letters, with a plus sign between the two words.

Swathes of white are traversed by vivid streaks of burgundy, brown and soft gold, forming a natural  that feels both spontaneous and composed, like brush strokes across canvas. Each slab invites a dialogue with history, a conversation between contemporary design and classical influence.
